Any extension can be reached by dialing the campus operator at 581-7200.

The University of Utah is fully committed to policies of nondiscrimination and equal opportunity, and vigorously pursues affirmative action in all programs, activities, and employment with regard to race, color, national origin, sex, age, and status as a person with a disability. Religion, sexual orientation, and status as a disabled veteran or veteran of the Vietnam era also are protected under nondiscrimination and equal opportunity employment policies. The University seeks to provide equal access to its programs, services, and activities for people with disabilities. Reasonable prior notice is needed to arrange accommodations.

Evidence of practices not consistent with these policies should be reported to the University of Utah Office of Employee Relations and Dispute Resolution, (801) 581-8365 (voice or TDD). Upon request, this information is available in alternative formats, such as cassette, Braille, or large print.

The University of Utah strongly endorses the Student Right-to-Know and Campus Security Act. On the University of Utah campus, state laws are enforced at all times and adjudicated in a court of law. Infractions of the University of Utah Student Standards of Academic Performance and Standards of Behavior should be referred to the Office of the Dean of Students.

A NOTE ABOUT THIS BOOK:

This 2000-2002 General Catalog covers two academic years: 2000-2001 and 2001-2002. Most of the information contained within does not change from year to year. For information that does change, references to current sources are given throughout.

Not all the courses that appear in the “Courses” section of this book are offered every year. Current course offerings are listed in the Class Schedule, which is published three times a year, well before the beginning of each semester. The Class Schedule also contains the academic calendar, tuition and fees schedules, general education and graduation requirements, and much other valuable information.

The various college bulletins are another important source of current information, as are handouts from academic departments and publications from individual administrative units. Telephone numbers and addresses for these areas are provided within.

Perhaps the best source of current information is the University of Utah’s home page on the World Wide Web, located at http://www.utah.edu. Most of the information in this catalog can be accessed via the University’s Web page, and many departments, colleges, and administrative units maintain Web pages too. Most of these Web addresses appear in this book. The courses in the General Catalog Online are updated twice a year; other online data are updated on a less regular basis.
